New York, Sept. 19, 1877.

Dr. Tuit: Dear Sir—During this year I treated nine hundred cases of lung diseases. In the lower words of the city the esses were of a very severe type. It was there my attention was called to Tuit's Expecterant, and I confess ray surprise at its wenderful power. During a practice of twenty years I have never known a medicine to act as premptly and with such bappy effects. It instantly subdued the most violent fits of coughing, and invariably cured the discussion as few days. I cheerfully endorso it as Special contracts will be made with yearly adsease in a few days. I cheerfully endorse it as the best lung medicine I over used. J. FRANCIS HAY WOOD, M.D.

Office Evening News, Augusta, Ga.
Dr. Tutt: Dear Sir-My little son was attacked with pneumonia last winter, which left him with a violent cough that lasted till within a month since, for the cure of which I am indebt-ed to your valuable Expectorant. I had tried most everything recommended, but none did any good until I used your Expectorant, one bottle of which removed the cough entirely. With many thanks, I am yours truly,

HAD TERRIBLE NIGHT SWEATS. Memphis, February 11, 1871.

Dr. Tutt: Sir—I have been suffering for nearly two years with a severe cough. When I commenced taking your Expectorant I was reduced to one hundred and sixteen pounds in weight. I had tried almost everything; had terrible night sweats. I have taken half dozen bottles. The night sweats have left me, the cough has disappeared, and I have gained fifteen pounds in flesh, I recommend it to all my friends. With great respect, OLIVER BIOK.

Edison Cutdone. The latest of these "phone" inventions is a stomachaphene. A gentleman in this city is the inventor, though he will be compelled to pay a royalty to the Bell Telephone Company, for the use of the bell. The stomachaphone is a peculiar concern, and sometimes we think it will not work, but the inventor is sanguine. He proposes to have a central office, with wires running to every house. At meal time every person in the house is connected with the contrai office by a wire which enters the mouth and touches a dist which reaches the palate, like the house of correction gag, for instance. At the central office an elaborate dioner is prepared and placed on a table which is charged with electricity. When soup comes on the table, a wire is placed in the scup, the operator touches a button and connects the soup with every house that is a subscriber, and to every inmate of every house. At first a person so connected feels a bubbling, such as at times comes through the telephone when the fellow at the end has got ready to talk. The bubbling sound is followed by the delicious taste of the soup, which goes by the palate into the stomach. Of course there is no soup comes through the wire, but the effect is just the same.

It is fiat saup, on the same principle of fiat money, and it warms the stomach and braces a man up. After soup comes fish and a roast of beef, and so on down the bill of fare. One meal, it is estimated by the inventor, is enough for a hundred thousand people, so it will be seen that the saving will be enormous. The inventor has an office in one of our restaurants. and has wires reneing to a number of newspaper offices, and he has been experimenting on several editors and reporters for the past week. Mr. Harger of The Wisconsio, Mr. Yenoine of the Signal, Dr. Magann of the News, Mr. Bieger of the Sentinel, and Mr. Northrop of the Chicago Times, and several gentlemen, are being experimented on, and they express confidence in the success of the Mr. Harger claims that he has gained thirty pounds in a week. This article is not written as an advertisement, as there is no stock in the stomachaphone for sale. However, if it works, death blow will have been struck at hotels and boarding houses. If the gentlemen that are being experimented upon live another week. the inventor will at once contract to furnish private residences by the new method. He has not yet tried to transmit beer or its effects through the stomachaphone, but he feels certain that it is as easy to send beer as soup. If it should be demonstrated that beer could be transmitted, an immense business will be done. as more people drick beer than eat. The progress of the experiments will be watched with great interest. - Peck's Sun. A ROYAL ROMANOR, -A princess of Prussia at one time received a small and antique ring from her governess for a present. About a year after the occurrence the court received a visit from the Grand Dake Nicholas, the brother of the Emperer Alexaeder, and who at that time was not the heir exceedant of the crown. The Grand Duke saw the princess, and, with the quick resolve native to his disposition, immedistely determined to ask her in marriage. One day, as he was scaled by her side at the royal dinner table, he spoke to her of his forthcoming departure, adding that it depended upon her whether or not his stay in Berlin should be prolonged.

"What shall I do, then, to influence your tatentions?" was the reply of the smiling prin-"You must not refuse to receive my ad-

Nicholas.
"You es's much." "I ask even more. You ought to give me some encouragement in my endeavers to please dresses," immediately returned the outspoken

"That is still more difficult. Besides the mo-"That is still more didicult. Besides the mo-mont is not well chosen for a favor."

"I beg your Royal Highness to give me a sign that I am not totally indifferent to you. You have a little ring on your flager, the possession of which would make me happy. I beseech you to give me the ring."
"What! give the ring at the dinner table, and in the presence of all these people?" "Let me sen-press it into this piece of bread and give it to me." And press the ring into a piece of bread she did, and gave it to the future Emperor. Nicho-las took an early opportunity to leave the hall, and on exhuming the treasure from its wheaten tomb, discovered an inscription on the inner side in French, and running to the following effect: "L'Imperatrice de Russie."

He is said to have worn the keepsake for the rest of his days, attached to a chain round his neck, the ring being too small of course for any of his colossal fingers. The future Empress, it seems, had been unconsciously wearing for some time the emblem of her future greatness.

A QUEER HOUSE -An eccentric Englishman has recently built a house in the Quarter Tivoli for the residence of himselt, his wife and eight children, which is the talk of all Paris! It is circular, and has neither door nor window externally. The approach to it is from the ground floor on to the roof by means of a ladder, which is moved up and down by machinery similar to that of a drawbridge. There is only one floor, and that contains eighteen aparts ments, more or less, small in dimensions, looking into the centre, which is lighted from above by a glazad cupola. One stove for all these rooms is in the middle, and in summer its place is to be occupied by an exquisite parteere of flowers. A circular balcony, open to all the aparements, surrounds this space. The motive of this oddity is, of course, only known to the author of it, but everybody can see that two points are gained by it-immunity from the taxes on doors and windows, and a perfect preventive of any attempt at burg ary .- Faris Letter.
